Crosses campaign

Cumberland Times-News

Friends in Jesus Evangelistic Church has begun site work in hopes of building three crosses on the 7-acre hill behind the church off U.S. Route 220 in Cresaptown. The Headrick Co. in Laurel, Miss., created this computerized image to portray how the 150-foot crosses would look on the site. Account executive John Rebry describes the project as a landmark that will be seen for miles around the Cresaptown area. The company has been building large crosses throughout the nation for 10 years. Pastor Bartholomew Frankenberry is in the process of beginning a capital campaign to raise money for the project. Contact him at (301) 707-0922 or P.O. Box 5121, Cresaptown, MD 21505.
